White Space
By Jarrod Coleman

On pace drifting street by street
City sounds, windows, signs, you pass moving on your feet
Vivid colors: red, blue, yellow, orange, green smile upon you as a sharp as a knife
Flowing and streaming together like a movie or an always changing painting of life
All of a sudden time seems to stop, breathe of relief, as you now face cold gray steel
A threshold is crossed as a calming ambiance and serenity brings about a still feel

Open, controlled, minimal, wood, glass, leather
Less is more, subtle environment, contemporary, but weathered
Graceful, understood, inviting, untainted, simple, untraced
Living within the fold, between the familiarity of ever-changing color and undefined
White space....
